BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE ON EVE OF SALE OF FARM

Lightning Strikes Structure and Hay and Wheat Crops With Farm Implements Are Destroyed.

Less than 24 hours before settlement was to have been made for the purchase of the farm, lightning struck the barn on the property of Harry J. Riley, two miles east of Fairfield, shortly after 2 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, destroying the structure, together with this year's crops of wheat and hay.

Mr. Riley had entered into a contract for the sale of his farm to George W. Beck, of Franklin county, and settlement was to have been made with the latter at 10 o'clock today. This morning Mr. Riley said that sale of the farm now was doubtful.

Chicken House Burns
In addition to the barn, which was destroyed, the wagon shed and chicken house also burned down.

The bolt which set fire to the barn came at the end of a severe electrical storm which passed over that section of the county a short time before. Rain had stopped falling just as the lightning struck.

In a few minutes, the barn was in flames and there was scarcely time to remove two horses and seven cows from the burning structure. The barn measured 45 feet in length and 25 feet in width.

The structure was filled to the rafters with unthreshed wheat and a large quantity of hay, both constituting the entire crops of these products from the farm.

Farm Implements
A binder, wagon bed, corn drill, several plows and a quantity of harness, most of these items in the barn and wagon shed, were also consumed by the flames. The hog pen was saved, but the chicken house burned, and five chickens were burned.

Neighbors of the Riley's quickly gathered and more than 75 of them formed a bucket brigade. A call was also put in for the Fairfield Fire Company and fire fighters responded from that town with their chemical tanks. The fire company and the bucket brigade saved the hog pen. The Riley home was never in danger from the blaze, because there was practically no wind stirring at the time.

$500 Insurance
Mr. Riley estimates his loss at about $2,000. He carried $500 insurance on the barn and some insurance on the crops. He said he was undecided whether or not he would rebuild the barn.

Mr. Riley's farm contains 46 acres and 150 perches, and is located in Highland township.

LIKE A FOOTBALL GAME

Cashtown used two batteries in its game with Fayetteville, at Caledonia Park, Thursday afternoon, but was unable to stop the Franklin county team, which piled up 23 runs while the Cashtowners gathered but three. Robert and Keller, pitchers, and Carbaugh and Robert, catchers, were Cashtown's batteries.

GASHES RIGHT HAND

Clarence Steinhour, manager of the Steinhour grocery store on South Washington street, suffered a severe gash in his right hand this morning. In reaching for some merchandise on a top shelf of the store, his right hand struck a nail, tearing a two inch gash in the flesh. Medical treatment was applied.

FIRST VISIT IN 10 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Kime and family, of Rock Falls, Illinois, formerly of Gettysburg, have motored East and are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. F. Milton Kime, Biglerville. This is Mr. Kime's first visit to Adams county in ten years.

LEAVE FOR EAST

Captain Charles F. Nash, retired United States Navy officer, and Mrs. Nash, of Washington, D. C., after spending several days with Captain and Mrs. W. A. Garvin, Reynolds street, left this morning on a trip to Baltimore, Wilmington, Philadelphia and Atlantic City.

CHINA TOURIST VISITS IN CITY

Suchowfu, China, sent Dr. Nettie D. Grier to Gettysburg and thus wins today's honor of having the guest "furthest away from home." Dr. Grier, who has distant relatives here, registered at the Hotel Gettysburg last evening.

At the Hoffman Hotel H. J. Bobson and family, of St. Louis, Missouri, are awarded second honors while Dr. and Mrs. Fred White, of Atlanta, Georgia, are third, registered at the Eagle Hotel.

SOUTHERN PASTOR TO SPEAK SUNDAY

Charlotte, North Carolina, Minister to Deliver Sermon in Presbyterian Church Here.

Dr. Albert Sidney Johnson, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, of Charlotte, N. C., will preach in the Presbyterian church here on Sunday morning.

Rev. W. C. Robinson, pastor of the Presbyterian church, has been making several efforts to secure one of the strongest representatives of the Southern Presbyterian church here this summer and in Dr. Johnson's coming has been successful.

Dr. Johnson has declined all other invitations to preach this summer, but on account of the historic interest here consented to preach in Gettysburg.

Historic Note

There is a good deal of historic note attached to his coming. Dr. Johnson is pastor of the First Presbyterian church in Charlotte, the county seat of Mecklenburg county, where the Presbyterians drew up the first Declaration of American Independence, and he is coming to one of the churches of Carlisle Presbytery where Presbyterians drew up the second Declaration of American Independence.

Dr. Johnson bears the name of one of the Confederate Generals and has had in his congregation, until her recent death, the wife of another, Mrs. "Stonewall" Jackson. He is coming to preach at Gettysburg in the church Lincoln attended the day he gave his address here. Recently Colonel McAllister, one of the elders of the Presbyterian church, was in receipt of a letter from Dr. Johnson commending the action of the session of the local church at spring Presbytery.

Rev. Earl J. Bowman, pastor of St. James Lutheran church, will deliver the sermon in the Presbyterian church at the evening service, the first of the Union Protestant evening services during August.

Funeral Services to Be Held on Saturday

Funeral services for John M. Trostle, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Trostle, Highland township, who died at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Wednesday evening, will be held Saturday afternoon, brief services from the house at 2 o'clock and further services from Marsh Creek Church of the Brethren. Burial in the cemetery adjoining the church.

FORMER PASTOR HERE

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. J. B. Baker and family, of Indiana, Pennsylvania, arrived Thursday evening to spend the month of August at their cottage along Marsh Creek. Rev. Dr. Baker formerly was pastor of St. James Lutheran church here.

REALTY TRANSFER

A recent transfer of property in Adams county as listed in the record of deeds kept by C. G. Taughinbaugh, register and recorder, is that of Vitus J. Smith to Leroy C. Smith, two lots in Conewago township.

JUMPS TO DEATH

(By Associated Press.)
New York, Aug. 1.—Mrs. Daniel D. Waugh, of Watertown, N. Y., was killed today when she jumped from the fifth story of an apartment house during a fire and her husband, a minister, was seriously burned before he was rescued. The fire was said to be of incendiary origin.

FRUIT MEN TOUR COUNTY AUG. 5

Fruit Growers' Association to Entertain American Pomological Society Members.

Adams county is to help play host to a distinguished group of fruit growers when on Tuesday, August 5, the Adams County Fruit Growers' Association will entertain members of the American Pomological Society in an auto tour through the fruit belt of this county.

Besides Adams, other counties in Pennsylvania to be visited by the society are Franklin, York and Lancaster. This trip through the fruit section of the Keystone state is a part of the first extended tour members of this national association are making through seventeen states.

Guests of Society

On Monday, August 4, the visitors will be guests of the Franklin County Horticultural Society, visiting leading orchards in Franklin county on that day.

The following day the Adams County Fruit Growers' Association will pilot the group through the fruit section of their county stopping at the orchards of Charles E. Raffensperger, Keller Brothers and Tyson Brothers, and inspecting the field laboratory of the Pennsylvania State College at Berksville and the Central Packing House at Biglerville. In the evening a meeting will be held with the York County Fruit Growers' Association at York.

Before proceeding into New Jersey on August 6 the fruit men will visit Springwood Orchard, the birthplace of the York Imperial apple, in York county, and the Masonic Home orchards, near Elizabethtown.

Detailed Itinerary

The detailed itinerary of the visitors trip through Adams county follows:

In charge of the Adams County Fruit Growers' Association. Start from the square, Gettysburg, at 8:30 a. m. Part of Adams county orchard district visited, McKnightstown to Biglerville. Visit orchards of Charles E. Raffensperger, Berksville, and the Central Packing House at Biglerville. Basket lunch with Adams County Fruit Growers' Association. Visit orchards of Tyson Brothers, Flora Dale to York, via York Springs. Supper and lodging at York. Meeting with York County Fruit Growers' Association in the evening. Total mileage for the day, about 60.

ASSEMBLY OPENS HERE TONIGHT

Eighteenth Lutheran Summer Assembly Attracts Largest Attendance in History of Meetings.

EXPECT 250 DELEGATES

When the first sessions of the eighteenth Lutheran Summer Assembly are held this evening at the Seminary, the largest attendance ever will be present. This was indicated this morning from the list of persons who had engaged reservations.

150 Delegates

More than 150 church and Sunday school workers from Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Delaware already have engaged rooms for the duration of the assembly, which is the oldest of three Lutheran summer gatherings.

It was stated this morning that all available accommodations at the Seminary and in private homes near the Seminary had been taken up and latecomers were being taken care of at the College Y. M. C. A. More than 250 persons are expected to attend the sessions of the conference, which opens formally Saturday morning and continues to August 8.

Opens This Evening

This evening at 6 o'clock the first session of the assembly will be held. After devotionals, Rev. Dr. S. Winfield Herman, of Harrisburg, president of the assembly, will deliver an address of welcome, outlining the plans and purposes of the annual summer gathering. Sessions of the assembly are held on the campus at the Seminary, except in inclement weather when the classrooms at the Seminary are utilized.

As set forth on programs of the assembly, "the object of this association shall be the holding of an assembly for the purposes of Biblical study and for conferences upon church activities and religious and social problems."

Foreign Missionaries

Returned missionaries from Japan, India and Africa are on the program for addresses, three evenings next week being given over to such talks. On Monday evening, Japanese missionary work will be discussed; on Tuesday evening, Indian missionary activities, and on Wednesday evening African missionary work.

Sister Emma Francis, the Normans of Japan, Strock, of India, and Yund or Currans, of Africa, are on the program for the missionary evenings.

On Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, young people of Lutheran churches in Gettysburg will present a pageant, and on Thursday evening, August 7, a pageant and musical is scheduled.

Prominent Guests

Among the teachers and lecturers for the day sessions of the assembly are Rev. Dr. J. A. Singmaster, Miss Jennie M. Streig, Rev. Dr. A. R. Wentz, Rev. Dr. C. C. Cronk, Rev. Dr. C. P. Wiles, Rev. Dr. N. R. Melhorn, Rev. Dr. E. A. Chamberlain, Rev. Dr. W. C. Shaeffer, Rev. Dr. F. Blackwelder, Mrs. Henry Moehling, Mrs. Edward I. Miller, Sister Emma Francis, Mrs. J. P. Reese, Mrs. Elsie Singmaster Lewars and others.

Musical features during the assembly will be in charge of the Rev. W. C. Ney.

It is pointed out that each of the instructors for the assembly is a specialist in his line, thereby affording those who attend an opportunity of becoming better acquainted with the various phases of church and Sunday school endeavor.

BANDIT KILLED BY POSTAL CLERK

Shot Twice, Sickly Young Man Prevents Robbery of Registered Bags; Feigned Drunkenness.

New York, Aug. 1.—An anemic postal clerk, who was transferred at his own request from New York to East Orange, N. J., six months ago, because of his health, gave good account of himself early yesterday morning in an attempted mail robbery there.

Shot in the right knee and the first joint of his right thumb carried away by a bullet as he started to draw, he killed one of two bandits. The other, losing his nerve, fled empty handed.

The "Newspaper Special" from New York had dropped five pouches of registered mail at the Lackawanna station. Eugene Stack, 23, of East Orange, the clerk, prepared to take the bags to the post office on the ground level.

Two men, feigning drunkenness, got off the train and moved toward Stack. "Sall right," one of them said, "I'll leave it to this fellow."

Something in their demeanor warned Stack as they lurched closer. His hand moved toward his holster. With lightning speed, one of the "drunks" drew and fired.

Stack fell, but returned the fire. The bandits fled, one disappearing down the station stairs, the other plunging down headlong.

An automatic was found halfway down the steps. The bandit was dead.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Harman Sentz, Orrtanna; James Henry Stewart and Katherine Stewart, Baltimore, and Francis Smith, Cashtown, were admitted to the Warner Hospital.

This Little Fellow-- "Smiles Through His Tears"

Triple-trouble has come to visit Carl Oylar, Jr., almost three.

This youthful example of the aged couplet that "troubles, be they great or small, never come singly" has almost as much trouble as the ancient Job, and the same amount of patience.

Several days ago, Carl slipped as he was coming down stairs at his home on York street. In falling, he turned a complete flip-flop, cutting a deep gash along side his eye when his head hit the sharp edge of a step.

The cut was almost sufficiently long and deep to require stitches to close, but home remedies were applied. Now it is feared he will carry a scar on his cheek for life.

Then on Wednesday evening, he pulled the door of a car shut, catching the thumb between the door and the jamb. This injury caused the little fellow severe pain, and again home treatment was applied to relieve the suffering.

On Thursday, however, he was taken to a physician when his leg started to show signs of an infection, resulting, it is believed, from scratching a mosquito bite, and the physician, after treating the infection in the leg, examined the little fellow's thumb and found that a bone had been splintered.

Now the little fellow wears bandages around his head, for the cut at his eye, his thumb is in splints, so that the bones may knit together properly, and his leg is swathed in bandages for the infection.

But despite these painful misfortunes, on August 10 Carl, Jr., who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Oylar, Sr., will be three years old, and he is looking forward to a birthday party with a great deal of satisfaction.

Loeb's Sweetheart Remains Loyal and Will Help Defense

GERMAINE K. REINHARD

Miss Germaine K. "Patches" Reinhardt, sweetheart of "Angel Faced Dickie" Loeb, one of the youthful slayers of little Bobby Franks in Chicago, to whom Loeb is the "same lovable Dickie he always was", will be a witness for the defense in the slayer's hearing.

INTELLECTUAL FEAT WAS PLOT OF YOUNG LOEB

Defense Witness, 'Alienist, Declares One of Youthful Slayers Planned Murder of Franks.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Aug. 1.—The kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks was planned "as an intellectual feat" on the part of Richard Loeb, according to testimony given today in the hearing which is to decide punishment for him and Nathan Leopold, Jr., for that crime.

This revelation of Loeb's motive came at the end of the morning session today from Dr. William A. White, first witness for the defense, whose testimony was started after Judge Caverly had definitely overruled objections by the state directed against all evidence as to the insanity of the defendants.

Ends Argument

This ruling disposed of a question which had been argued for two days and which attorneys agreed constituted a precedent in Illinois for receiving evidence in mitigation of punishment.

The defense is momentous in legal annals of this state as no exactly similar situation could be found by the attorneys.

"It is the court's duty to hear this evidence," said Judge Caverly. "It is not his duty to reject it before he had an opportunity to hear it; therefore objection by the state is overruled."

Early in Dr. White's testimony, Mr. Crowe blocked efforts to bring in speculative opinion as the influence of home environment. Judge Caverly ruled that the witness might answer only as to what he had learned about the defendant, but allowed him to state relative importance of this condition.

BABE HAS LUCKY ESCAPE IN CRASH

Thrown from the arms of its mother onto the highway, Janet Marie, 4½-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob B. Black, Bensenville, miraculously escaped serious injury Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Although the infant was slightly bruised, an X-ray examination at the Warner Hospital, where it was taken after the accident, failed to uncover any injury which might cause alarm.

Mr. Black suffered a deep laceration above the right eye. He was given treatment at the hospital, but both he and his infant daughter were discharged later in the evening. The mother escaped injury.

The car driven by Mr. Black and that of C. J. Tyson, Flora Dale, driven by his daughter, Miss Margaret Tyson, collided at the driveway to the Tyson home. No one in the Tyson car was injured.

Neither machine was badly damaged.

Sentence Killers 9 Days After Crime

Mound City, Ill., Aug. 1.—Nine days after Miss Daisy Wilson, pretty 18-year-old girl, was slain while attempting to protect her father from an attack by two colored men who had entered the Wilson store at Villa Ridge, Ill., with the confessed intent to rob, Hess Connors, 22, and Fred Hale, 19, of Cairo, both colored, entered pleas of guilty to first-degree murder and robbery and were sentenced; the former to hang, and the latter to ninety-nine years in the Illinois penitentiary at hard labor.

The decisions were returned Wednesday night in the Pulaski county circuit court by Judge D. T. Hartwell, following the presentation of evidence required in first-degree murder cases.

Connors, whose date of execution was set for October 17, had previously confessed to firing the shot that killed Miss Wilson while Hale confessed complicity in the robbery.

STATE BREEDERS HOME FROM TOUR

Fifteen Swine Breeders Represent Adams County On Tour of Inspection of Farms.

Fifteen swine breeders in Adams county, who participated in the first annual State-wide swine breeders tour to the government farms at Beltsville, Maryland, on July 30 and 31, returned home Thursday evening, enthusiastic over their tour of inspection.

The county contingent to the government farms met other swine breeders from all parts of the state, at York. There were fifty automobiles, carrying 200 breeders, in the party. Cumberland county had fifty breeders in the tour.

Wednesday night was spent in Washington and on Thursday morning a tour of the government's experimental farms began. Dairy herds and buildings, sheep experiments and flocks and the swine plant, which is said to be the most up-to-date practicable swine plant in the country, were all closely scrutinized by the visitors.

Efficiency Explained

The officials in charge of the farm and particularly those in charge of the swine department left no stone unturned in entertaining and placing before the Pennsylvanians the results of their work. Farmers had pointed out to them the economy of keeping hogs free from lice, some of the results of in-breeding, methods of management of the brood sows before and after farrowing, the advantages of the self-feeder, the advantages of keeping brood sows in open lots the year 'round, except for two weeks at farrowing time, the advantage of the right kind of mineral mixture self fed with grain and many other practical points which proved interesting and educational to the swine breeders.

After lunch, Thursday, served at the abattoir on the farm, short talks were given by officials of the Department of Agriculture in charge of the departmental work on the farm. Invitation was given the Pennsylvanians to make the tour an annual affair.

R. E. Underwood, Adams county farm agent, headed Adams county's delegation on the tour.

REFORMED CHURCH PICNIC ON FRIDAY

Members of Trinity Reformed church are making elaborate preparations for the annual picnic of the church and Sunday school to be held at Arendtsville Union Park, Friday, August 8.

Committee chairman were announced this morning as follows:

Transportation, George W. Rex; amusements, Rev. N. L. Horn, and refreshments, John Dutterer.

Special feature of the picnic will be a rooster chase for women and a baseball game between the single and married men of the congregation. There will also be many other kinds of amusements and contests.

The main body will leave the church at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Transportation will be furnished for those who are going at that time.

THESE CARS BUILT TO TAKE BALLOON TIRES

Full size balloon tires bring an amazing riding ease to a motor car, but the car itself must be designed with the balloons' special qualities in mind, according to E. L. Weikert, Jr., Hudson-Essex dealer in Gettysburg. Mr. Weikert feels qualified to speak because the present Hudson-Essex line is the first instance in which a large producer of motor cars has equipped his entire line with genuine balloon tires as standard equipment, he says.

"Most of the unfavorable talk about balloon tires," said Mr. Weikert, "comes from the fact that they have been simply added onto cars which were not designed to handle the exceptional grip which they have on the road. Such cars without doubt do develop undesirable habits of performance."

"When Hudson-Essex decided to adopt balloon tires as standard equipment, its engineers went thoroughly into all the new problems which the balloons would bring. Then they made the necessary alterations to handle the new conditions which the big tires brought about."

"The result is the easiest steering and surest driving Hudson ever built. We ask old Hudson owners to check up on this statement with us. The full size genuine balloon tires have brought an ease of riding which is delightful."

The school directors of Menallen township met recently and elected the following teachers:

Boomers, Miss Hoffman; Excelsior, Blaine Bushey; Winksville, Dewey McCashin; Cottage Hill, Miss Gladys McBeth; Locust Grove, Grammar, Miss Stover; Locust Grove, Primary, Miss Media Peters; Oak Grove, Miss Pearl Eppelman; Fairmount, Miss Marian Peters; Constitution, Miss Marjorie Brough.

Big Lips for Beauty Is Idea of Africans

The women of the Lake Chad region of Central Africa vie with one another as to who can possess the longest lips.

When girls are about four or five years old their future husbands pierce a hole in the center of the upper and lower lips with a big thorn or a knife. Through these holes he places thick straws or reeds.

In a few weeks, when the girl has become used to the punctures, wooden pegs the size of a lead pencil are pushed into the holes, says London Tiff-Bits. Three months later, when the lips have become accustomed to the distension, larger pegs are inserted. At twenty-five a fashionable matron of the Sarus-Djinges tribe is likely to have disks seven inches wide in the lower lip and five inches wide in the upper. Up to this time the disks stick straight out like birds' bills, but now they drop down from their weight.

After this larger disks are inserted about once a year. It is a matter of social pride with a woman to go on increasing her lips as long as possible.

Raise Fine Specimens of Butterfly in France

Butterfly culture in the south of France is rapidly growing in popularity. Here, under expert scientific guidance, hundreds of beautiful specimens are bred. The farms are provided with special leafy trees and plants on which the eggs are hatched. Directly the young appear the branches are taken to a well-ventilated room, where they are placed in jars of water. As soon as the caterpillars have eaten up this first supply of leaves fresh branches are provided. Having been in an even temperature for about two weeks, the young caterpillars are taken out into the open, where they are placed on plants protected from birds by nets. When fully grown this protective net is removed and soon they retire into cocoons or roll themselves up into leaves. These are collected and stored in boxes, where in a very short time butterflies of wonderful hues are evolved. Cross-breeding has been tried and numerous experiments are conducted to obtain brilliant and original markings on the wings of these insects, which are afterward sold to collectors or for the adornment of women's hats and dresses.

Fable of the Four Men

"I got off a street car this morning," said a doctor, "and being in no hurry I began moralizing on the actions and probable character of three men who had alighted just ahead of me. The first one was even then halfway down the block and was going on with such rapid strides that he had already put a couple of hundred yards between himself and the next man. 'There,' thought I, 'goes a hustler—a man who's bound to succeed in life.' The second man was walking rather slowly and impressed me as one who would do fairly well, perhaps, in this world. But the last fellow was just dawdling along in the most shiftless sort of way. I very quickly set him down as a loafer."

"Just then another idea came home to me. All three were ahead of me!" —Pathfinder Magazine.

Turf Natural Filter

France's experiments with natural turf have shown that it is an excellent material from which to form beds for the filtering of sewage. A volume of between three and four cubic meters of sewage can be purified every day for every square meter of the surface of the turf. An experimental turf filter that has been in use for more than seven months shows diminution of efficiency. If a larger proportion of sewage than that mentioned is employed the filter proves less effective, but it recovers its power when the amount of sewage is reduced to the proper proportion. Chemical analysis and the effects upon fish put into the filtered water unite in testifying to the efficiency of the process.

French Butter Markets

During the months of June, July and August the butter markets of Normandy are an interesting sight to the visitors. The peasants assemble in the market squares of the various towns, almost in military formation, with their baskets filled with large pats of butter, each done up in the whitest of cloths. The buyers walk along the lines and bargain for the wares, tasting samples before deciding. If the prospective buyer is satisfied with the flavor of one morsel he knows he may rely on the rest of it being equally good, for the French law regarding the adulteration of food is very strict, and a fraudulent seller is severely dealt with.

Poor Henry!

A Baltimore man, who was formerly a resident of a town on the eastern shore, recently revisited his old home town after an absence of many years. One day he was talking with an old friend about various people he formerly knew.

"What became of the Hall family?" he inquired.

"Oh," said the latter, "Tom Hall did very well. Got to be an actor out on the Pacific coast. Bill, the other brother, is something of an artist in New York, and Lucy, the sister, is doing literary work. But Henry never amounted to much. It took all he could try his hands on to support the others." —Philadelphia Ledger.

Welfare Department Publishes Directory

In the interests of a more intelligent use of the institutions under its jurisdiction the Pennsylvania Department of Welfare has published a directory of state and semi-state institutions. This handbook supplements the Map of State Institutions which was recently prepared and issued by the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania. It gives the names, location, capacity and districts of the state institutions and discusses briefly the methods and requirements for admission, discharge and parole. It contains in concise form data of interest to workers with mentally ill, mentally defective, epileptic, delinquent and other classes, and indicates sources of further information. The handbook may be obtained without charge from the Welfare Information Bureau of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania, 311 South Juniper street, Philadelphia.

JOSSELYN'S WIFE

by Kathleen Norris

Ellen went up to bed contented, and undressed while she dreamed of a new life for herself and Gibbs. They would take the little apartment that adjoined the studio, they would be alone again, the old happy atmosphere would be recreated. He loved her, under all this new madness—

Ellen saw herself in her mirror; her cheeks burning, her eyes starry, her loosened cloud of hair framing her thoughtful face. Hope came back, confidence came back, a dimple deepened in her cheek. It was all her foolish suspicion, after all. Gibbs had been at the dinner, and would come home on the midnight train, and turn the electric lights full in her eyes while he gave her a yawning account of the speeches, and tore off his white tie. And Lillian had been—she did not care where Lillian had been!

But when she had jumped into bed, and midnight struck, and one o'clock, and two o'clock, and he did not come, the anger and doubt returned in double force. The storm was still racking about the house. Ellen felt cold under her thick blankets. She tossed and turned, locked her arms under her head and stared into the dark, turned and tossed again.

Her father-in-law had disposed of the matter simply and sanely. But suppose she was right, suppose Lillian and Gibbs had really thrown all honor to the winds, were really together tonight, then what? How could she—how could any wife, forgive that? To have his father take away the danger, as she might take matches away from Tommy, proved nothing for him, and solved nothing for her.

And if he and Lillian did not choose to be separated, if that passion had carried them far beyond any plans that she and his father might make—? The clock struck three; struck four. Ellen felt as if she would never sleep again.

The next morning she surprised Lillian and Tommy at their early breakfast; she was going into the city. The sun had just risen, and Louis, the lad who assisted Torrens, had the little service car at the door, and was confident that he could get Mrs. Josselyn as far as the station.

Just as Ellen was leaving, her father-in-law, also cloaked and gloved, came downstairs. Their heavy eyes met.

"I don't know why I'm going, or what I'm going to do," Ellen said, "I've got to go to the studio—and see if they—if he's there. I didn't sleep all night."

"I'll go with you," he said quickly. "I saw Louis come to the door, and I thought you must be going to town. I'll go too. Lillian's car may really have gotten into trouble."

"Or he may have been foolish enough to try to come out in the roadster," Ellen added. They went down the scraped steps together; not another word was exchanged on the drive to the train. It was an early train: commuters were stamping on the snow-tracked platform. Ellen placed herself at a window and stared blindly out, making no attempt to entertain her companion, who rattled his newspaper with a great show of interest.

The world glittered under the risen sun. Smoke rose straight from a hundred chimneys into the clear cold air. Ellen saw a woman with a shawl tied over her head, feeding chickens; another woman kissed two bundle-like babies at a gate. The little woman in front of her, in the warm train, was consulting an insignificant-looking, kindly little man about a Christmas list. "The children will go out of their senses when they see it!" Ellen heard her say.

Then they were in the big station; in a taxicab. The streets, where laughing gangs of men were shoveling snow, went by. Forty-second: Fifth: Fifty-ninth. They were at the door.

"You have some explanation of this early trip for Gibbs?" her father-in-law asked suddenly in the lift. She turned to him tortured eyes.

"Oh, yes—toothache," she answered breathlessly, abstractedly.

A second later, outside the studio door, she caught his arm. They stood a moment transfixed. They could hear Gibbs' full, unmistakable voice. A woman's laugh—Lillian's rare laugh, sounded in answer.

Instantly Ellen's companion flung open the door.

Gibbs and Lillian were alone in the studio. Gibbs, in his painting apron, was busy with the wooden screws and cogs that adjusted his big easel. Lillian, bareheaded and wearing a splendid robe of Chinese green, was beside the fire, coffee and rolls were on the little table before her; she was enjoying her breakfast.

CHAPTER IX

Ellen had passed through several phases of violent emotion in the past ten days, like everyone else in the house she had been undergoing tremendous mental adjustments. But more sensible or more adaptable than the others, she had disciplined herself to accept the new order of things. Ellen had the advantage of some preparation, whereas the events of the memorable Wednesday had fallen upon the others like a thunderbolt. She had suspected, doubted, and dreaded, for many heartick days and weeks before the crisis came, and now, while they all suffered in their separate ways from the shock, Ellen even experienced a desperate satisfaction. It was over: Gibbs loved her no longer, and he knew that she knew it.

For a few days the repetition of this fact gave her an empty, vague feeling, and a sensation of fatigue. She was always tired, and her head felt always confused. Gibbs loved her no longer.

Well, what next then? She had faced terrible things before. The old leather harness, for instance, and the feverish days of pain in the old dining-room, by the air-tight stove. And later winter days, in Paris now, when she had roused in the night to listen to the baby's uneven breathing and had wakened to remember that the crib was gone, that Rose was gone—Rose was gone!

And now she must keep sane, and face these new, strange things. Gibbs, her own husband, loved another woman more than his wife, and Joe, the little brother whose simple, sturdy integrity had seemed to shine in so brilliant a contrast to this life of hypocrisies and affectations, Joe had caused misery and harm, and must take a tarnished record into his new life as a husband.

Brooding on these things day and night, yet Ellen forced herself to a certain desperate courage. She dressed in her usual scrupulous, quaint way, she made herself walk and read, and enter into Tommy's life. She met Gibbs' stern and moody unresponsiveness with tranquil gravity, with his father alone she was more like her old sunny self. Lillian and Ellen barely spoke to each other, except for the unavoidable civilities whose omission would have caused talk among the servants.

Josselyn, Senior, had somewhat withdrawn into himself since the trip to the studio, and had asked his wife to cancel all engagements for a week or two. Lillian amiably obeyed, and after that the silence and chill of hidden anger and suppressed fear fell upon the "Villino dell' Orto." Once George Lathrop came to dinner, and for a few hours the shadow lifted, and now and then Joe came in, perceiving that something was wrong, but assuming, as they were all assuming, that everything was normal and pleasant between the Josselyns. Otherwise they were alone.

Lillian was bewildered and made a little uneasy by the suddenness with which this change in atmosphere had come about, because, as she told herself a dozen times a day, nothing had happened, after all. When Tom and Ellen had so abruptly entered the studio, on that eventful Wednesday morning, she had been ready with her laughing explanation of her presence there, and she had seen that they accepted it. Lillian was not the woman to be caught unprepared in such a situation.

The smiling greeting with which she had risen to meet them: "Ah, now—you've spoiled it all!" was daunting in its bright sincerity. She had had a kiss for her husband, she had had an arm about Ellen as she elucidated: "Tom, darling, we've been scheming and scheming for a chance to get my picture painted for your birthday—what bad luck brought you in today?"

And Gibbs had promptly and concernedly followed her lead.

"And how'd you get in, Dad? The car broke down with Lillian yesterday on the Great Neck hill—Torrens got in as far as the service station—did he telephone you?"

"And I had to telephone the Wallaces," Lillian added, wide-eyed, "and Tom, I simply invited myself to stay with old Mrs. Pepper at Great Neck all night. I didn't telephone you because I had this date for an early sitting with Gibbs."

"Take a look at it!" Gibbs said, at the easel. "Awfully rough now, of course! It's just laid in." The old man, studying the canvas, nodded.

"Still, you've caught it!" he said. "Car broke down, eh?"

"No, it was skidding," Lillian, at her husband's side, also looking at the portrait, explained. "The road was simply lined with cars, Tom. It was snowing hard, you know, and I got terribly nervous. Finally Torrens gave it up, too. He's been talking about the brake, you know, and he was as nervous as I."

She was smiling, eager, garrulous for Lillian.

Benefit Game Nets $80 to Pilot Miller

Two ball-playing, ball-smashing aggregations of the Adams County league, picked crews, one representing the upper end of the county, the other representing the lower end, clashed Wednesday evening at New Oxford in a benefit performance for Manager Miller of the New Oxford team who was injured in one of the games several weeks ago.

Who won the ball game does not matter, suffice it to say that the upper end didn't. The lowers copped 4 to 3.

More important and relative however is the fact that $80 worth of enthusiastic fans and fanettes passed through the turnstiles for the benefit tilt.

The upper enders went into the fray with plenty of fight, scored one counter in the second and countered back in the third with two more. With a safe margin of three scores they romped along in big league fashion until the fifth frame when the lower enders coupled a few bad misuses and a double smash into deep right and crossed four safe tallies across the platter, just enough to win the contest 4 to 3.

Hunter of the "Battlefield Bullets" came through with flying colors, connecting for three safe blows out of four trips to the platter. One of Hunter's drives netted him three sacks.

Shoop's running catch of Brown's long drive to deep center and Strasbaugh's one handed stab of a liner over second in the ninth frame with the tying and winning runs on the sacks featured in the contest.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Chicago evened up the series with Brooklyn yesterday, winning, 4 to 1. Keen was frequently in difficulties, but was pulled out of tight places by sharp fielding. The Dodgers used three pitchers, Decatur being charged with the defeat. Barrett drove in all four of Cubs' runs, hitting a homer off Decatur with one on in the third and tripling in the sixth off Roberts with two on. Hollocher's fielding featured.

Chicago.—Timely hitting by Hervey McClellan, who is substituting at second base for Captain Eddie Collins, coupled with a double steal by Shelly and Archdeacon, enabled Chicago to defeat Boston, 5 to 4, Thursday. Mangum pitched well until the sixth, when he weakened and had to retire the next inning. Collins strained a muscle in his leg and will be out a few days.

New York.—The Pittsburgh Nationals scored their seventh straight victory here yesterday, defeating New York in a six-inning game, 5 to 0. The contest was called because of rain and darkness. Meadows held the Giants safe, while Pittsburgh knocked out Watson in the second, scoring a batch of five runs.

Detroit, Mich.—Washington nosed Detroit out of second place here Thursday when Zachary won a pitchers' battle with Collins.

Two singles and a wild pitch in the fourth gave Washington the only run of the game.

Zachary allowed but two hits and Collins four.

Cleveland.—After taking the first game of a double bill with the Indians here yesterday afternoon, 7 to 3, the Athletics went ten innings in the nightcap, but lost, 4 to 3.

Aim to Lessen Spread Of Diseases in School

State College, Pa., July 29.—The beginning of a movement to lessen the spread of diseases among public school children of Pennsylvania may be said to be centered in a group of about 75 young women school teachers receiving special hygiene and first aid instruction at the summer session of the Pennsylvania State College.

Early symptoms of communicable diseases are stressed in lectures given to the teachers by Dr. J. P. Ritenour, the college physician. The teachers are learning to know the type of illness that should be barred from the class room until the school nurse or physician can be reached. These diseases include scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles, chicken pox and the like. The signs and symptoms of diseases of childhood are also of prime importance in the instruction, particularly of malnutrition, rickets, tuberculosis, tonsillar and adenoid diseases.

A great deal of the usual spread of diseases among school children could be avoided if teachers in charge are able to identify the earlier stages in time to get those afflicted out of contact with other pupils, according to Dr. Ritenour.

The young women teachers enrolled in Dr. Ritenour's first aid class are rapidly developing expertness in preparing all sorts of bandages and other measures necessary for relief to possible school boy or girl injuries. Prevention of accidents and first aid with poison and drowning cases are also emphasized.

FATHER, SON KILLED

A Well-Kept Farm Makes Own Market

By BERT BALL

(National Crop Improvement Service.)
NEAR every large city and near many not so large, there are farmers located on a well-traveled concrete highway whose market comes to them on wheels. In some localities this way of life is in full operation, but there are thousands of farmers who are neglecting this golden opportunity.

Appearance is just as important as in a well-kept shop in town. If the fences are well maintained on steel posts, the gate hung true, the homestead neatly painted, the roadside display will take an air of quality and bring many more customers than an equal display in front of a squalid and ill-fenced farm.

Vegetables, berries, eggs, poultry and flowers may be disposed of in paying quantities, and butter may be ordered shipped when the merchant's reliability has been established. Permanent customers may be secured who will take produce all the year.

Dependability is capital for such a farmer who can save four-fifths of the usual cost of marketing.

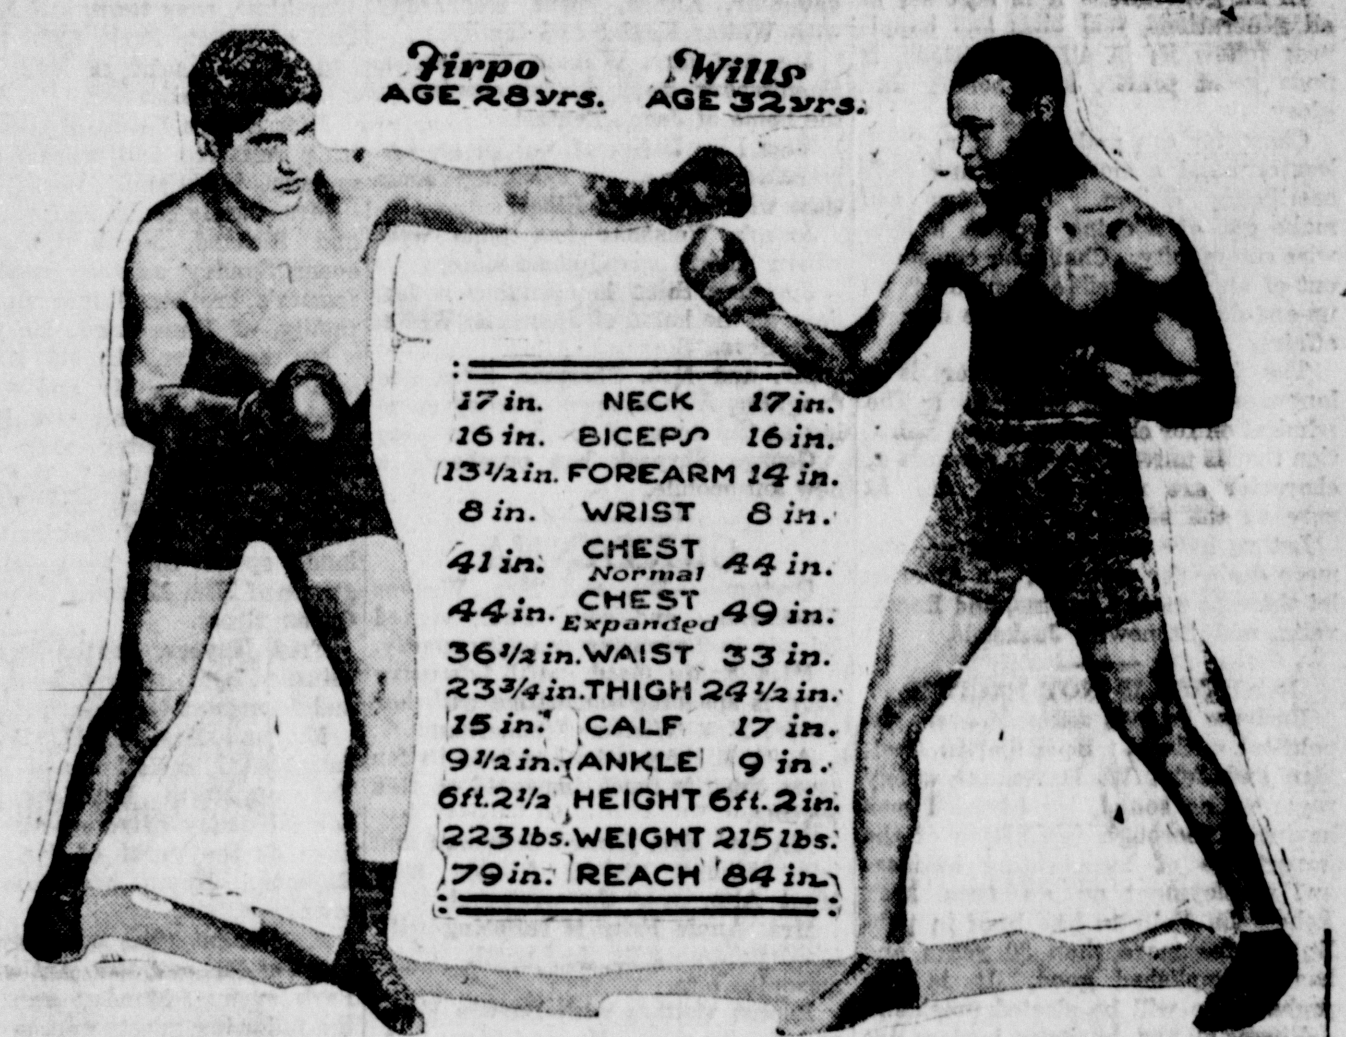

PRINCE OF WALES WILL SEE THEM PLAY IN U. S.

BRITISH INTERNATIONAL SOLO TEAM

Above is pictured the British International Polo Team, which is to sail shortly for the United States to play for the International Polo Trophy, now held in America. The Prince of Wales is coming to New York to witness the matches. The British team was photographed at the Roehampton Club, where they engaged in practice matches with the Roehampton Four. Left to right, they are Lieutenant Colonel T. E. Merville, Major Phipps Hornby, Major F. B. Hurndall and Lewis Lacey, of the Argentine.

HERE'S HOW FIRPO AND WILLS WILL APPEAR IN RING.

This photograph shows how Luis Angel Firpo, "Wild Bull of the Pampas," will appear when he battles Harry Wills, the "Black Panther," in Boyle's Thirty Acres, in Jersey City, N. J., on the night of Sept. 15.

What the World Is Doing

(As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine)

Hats for Wear in Next Century Are Displayed in Paris

Designed for wear in the spring of 1900 A. D., styles of millinery shown at ball in Paris were composed of massive transparent plastic and large clusters of leaves. One of the most popular models consisted of a decoration of gorgonian fronds that towered above the wearer's head and drooped gracefully to her shoulders. Gaudy head-dresses of blossoms and foliage also were displayed as fashions that would be the mode during the first years of the next century.

Hyena Strong but Cowardly, Runs from Small Dog

Although it is one of the strongest mammals, the hyena is a notorious coward and will often flee when pursued by a small dog. Only when it feels itself in danger does it defend itself. Because of its skulking nature and its habit of living from refuse on village dumps and carrion left by other beasts, the hyena is held in contempt among the natives of Asia and Africa, where it is most commonly found. The strength of its jaws is sufficient to crush the shinbone of a horse.

FOREST FIRE SPREADS

(By Associated Press.)

Boies, Aug. 1.—Fanned by strong winds, the forest fire which started near Eddy Tuesday night was spreading with alarming rapidity this afternoon and was yet beyond control.

Good excuses abound in the service of evil intentions.

Wear on Gold Coins Results in Loss of Millions

What becomes of gold? It has many channels of disappearance, according to experts. Figures show that more than half of the annual output is employed in the fine arts and jewelry trade. Thousands of pounds also are used by dentists, one estimate being that over a ton is needed every year for the filling of teeth. Then money is worn away in handling, this loss being placed at $1,250,000 annually. Bank of England sovereigns are often tested and found to have lost much of the original weight. Of the immense quantities of the precious metal that have been buried away in the earth, it is believed comparatively little has ever been recovered.

The priests of Peru are said to have buried approximately $10,000,000 worth of treasure to preserve it from the clutches of their persecutors. None of this has been found. The tombs of the old kings of Egypt were treasure houses, immense quantities of gold and jewels being interred with them. It has been estimated by historians that Alexander the Great became the master of great hoards of gold, all of which, so far as is known, has vanished.

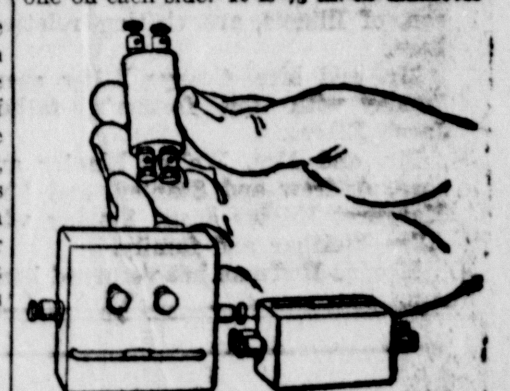

A Kink for Paperhangers

When hanging wall paper on a side wall it is necessary to see the edge of the paper from top to bottom in order to get the correct lap. This is very difficult to do when wearing spectacles, for it is impossible to see through them as well as with the naked eye. It has been found that this difficulty can be eliminated to a great extent by driving a small lath nail slightly into the wall on the edge of the paper as far from the edge as is necessary to get the correct lap, and at a point about one-third of the length from the top. The nail can readily be seen and the paper hung against it. Only the slightest fraction of an inch lap is needed in lapping, and this lap can be rolled down so as to present the appearance of a perfect butt joint.

The Smallest Radio Set?

What is claimed to be the smallest radio set in the world has been built by an amateur in Providence, R. I. Spurred on by accounts of what others had accomplished in building small sets, he first built a set 2 in. long, 2 in. wide, and 1 in. high. This contained a fixed crystal, a phone condenser, and a single-slide hand-wound coil. His next attempt resulted in a set 2 in. long by 1 in. square, containing everything but the phone condenser, which was discarded as unnecessary. Slider bars on top of these sets permit tuning up to 500 meters.

Even the second was not small enough, so a third set was built, which can be covered completely with four postage stamps, one on each side. It is 3/4 in. in diameter and 1 1/4 in. long. On this set complete broadcast within a radius of 20 miles can be heard distinctly.

Cleaning and Peeling Potatoes

In some parts of the southern states a novel and interesting method of cleaning and removing potato skins is used. The potatoes are placed in a pail half full of water and a number of rough stones are added. By stirring the potatoes and stones around in the water, the skins soon wear off due to the abrasive action of the stones, and the potatoes are washed clean.

(Estimates place the total number of newspapers published in the world at 25 thousand.)

"The Pottery City"

Choose Your Own Course

Where are you going to bet? Will you follow the crowd and be what the crowd is, or have you the sand, truth and foresight to step out from it and be different? You must and will do it if you have not already done so. It is "up to you" to make the decision—choose your course. You must either step out from the crowd or follow it.

In the present whirlpool of the world, character is the highest paid thing.
It's not easy to find; it's not so easy to buy, and that's why it commands so high a price.
Character, for some, is not hard to get, not hard to keep, and not easy to lose.
In the acquisition of character, wealth often acts as a hindrance, and culture may tend to dull the sense of character; it grows more easily in a small town than in the big city; it is nurtured more easily among humble folk, than among the gay lights.
In all generations it is success; in all generations, real bliss and happiness follow it; in all generations, it finds great praise, and honor, and glory.
Character can make out of a shiftless criminal a most useful and self-sacrificing citizen. Character can make out of a dying hamlet a live-wire community. Character can make out of an irresponsible do-nothing an up-and-doing and progressive man of affairs.
The language of character is a language that we all understand. The admiration for character is an admiration that is universal. The rewards of character are rewards that are as sure as the sunshine.
Let us have more permanence, and more desire for stability. In America let there be more Lincolns, and Roosevelts, and Stonewall Jacksons.

BUSINESS IS NOT EXCITED
Business is not excited over the political outlook. Both Calvin Coolidge and John W. Davis are widely regarded as sound, level-headed men having a thorough realization of the importance of maintaining business and employment on an even keel. Robert La Follette has been in public life for more than 30 years and has accomplished good. It is not probable he will be elected president. Financial and business leaders are not deluding themselves that Davis will conduct an innocuous campaign. His legal contact with financial clients is not expected to stop him from proclaiming progressive policies, some of which may disturb the conservative. True, the nomination of Davis has diverted more attention to La Follette. But third parties have not been treated kindly by American voters. "What Roosevelt failed to accomplish," one frequently hears. Business is going ahead regardless of the political situation. No man or body of men can stop it.

Hazleton Brewery Permit Is Revoked

Hazleton, Pa., Aug. 1.—Word was received here late Wednesday that the permit of the Pilsener Brewing Company, of this city, for the manufacture of nearbeer, has been revoked at Washington by Prohibition Commissioner Haines on a charge that the plant was turning out beverages more than the legal alcoholic content.

Owners of the plant announced that they would immediately appeal to the United States district court at Scranton.

Revocation of the permit followed a raid by state troopers June 3, when a truck of the brewery was seized as it had left. According to evidence

How to build up your Weight

To be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body.
It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus vitality.
It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells,
you begin to become plus.

That's why S.S.S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body.
More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

An Ice-Making Machine Saved the Inventor

By WALTER DELANEY

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

"SORRY, my friend, but you are about ten years too late." "Then my invention is worthless?" Inquired Ned Darrow in a tone of the deepest disappointment.

Young Darrow uttered a sigh of regret. He proceeded to put back in its leather case a device about two feet square. It was made up of coils, a glass jar, wires and tubes, a receptacle for sulphuric acid and a cranking attachment. By starting the sulphuric acid in motion by turning the crank, within a few minutes' time the quart of water in the condenser would become a solid cake of ice.

"I built so many hopes upon it!" murmured Darrow. "Everybody at home in the little country town where I lived encouraged me," and the honest blue eyes bore a trace of suspicious moisture. "There's a sweet little girl will be the worst disappointed. Poor Nellie!"

"I wouldn't give up so easily if I were you," said the lawyer in a sympathetic tone. "Why don't you work something out of it in a small way."

"As how, now?" queried Ned, with flickering hope.

"Well, try some remote country. It would be new there."

"Can't you suggest a place?" "Take Australia, for instance. Or Japan. South America, too, might prove a profitable field."

"I'll try it—I won't give up!" announced Ned Darrow determinedly.

There was a pathetic parting with Nellie Wyman, and sad but hopeful Ned found himself aboard an ocean steamer headed for the antipodes.

It was smooth and pleasant sea progress until the Arcturus came within five hundred miles of her destination, the city of Melbourne. A terrific storm arose and crew and passengers were hurried to the lifeboats.

"No baggage allowed!" announced the captain of the steamer sternly, as Ned started to enter one of the boats, his precious invention and its operating accessories in the leather case.

He was bound to save his machine, whatever came. This decision prevented his getting into the lifeboats. At last a lurch of the steamer sent him nearly overboard. He seized a safety plank and with it dropped into the water. Amid the high waves and the blackness of the night he drifted alone across a fathomless stretch of waters.

Almost famished and perishing from cold and exposure, the next morning at daybreak Ned was washed ashore. Revived and encouraged, he was about to line the coast, hoping to come upon some settlement, when with hideous yells there burst from a near thicket a score or more of dusky, half-naked savages.

Ned was bound hand and foot, placed upon a litter and carried through what suggested an interminable jungle.

After twelve hours of steady traveling they reached the royal palace. It seemed. At least Ned was carried within the structure, where upon a gaudy throne sat a thick-lipped, greased and painted savage.

From the hungry way in which this rubicund monarch viewed him, Ned decided that he would soon be roasted and eaten. The curiosity and interest of King Obi, however, were next fixed upon the leather case that contained the ice-freezing device.

He ordered it opened. Then he began fingering the coils and wheels of the machine. The clicking as he turned the crank tickled his childish nature. He glanced at Ned, bobbed his head and grinned, as if to say:

"What is this?" Ned bobbed vigorously, as if assenting to show the king what the machine could do. His hands were cut. He set the device in position, filled the acid receptacle and taking out the glass that held the water indicated by motions that it be filled with water.

Then Ned turned the crank. All hands in the royal court watched him raptly. Their eyes bulged as at the end of eight minutes he drew out a pound cake of ice.

"Hoo! hoo!" shouted the king, as the ice was handed to him, and he dropped the unusual substance from his fingers as though it were a piece of red-hot iron.

But once his royal highness cooled the drink at his side and enjoyed its rare freshness, he virtually appointed Ned ice purveyor to the crown.

Ned knew that his life was now surely safe. For a week he catered to the palate of King Obi. Then the sulphuric acid supply ran out. Ned explained to Obi that he would have to go to the nearest settlement to replenish it. By signs he made a bargain with the king that he was to furnish him an escort, give him his liberty and he would secure the acid and give him the ice-maker.

So it was arranged, and in payment for the same Obi handed Ned a little sack full of diamonds.

One day two months later, well-dressed, almost a capitalist, with bright face and a happy heart, Ned appeared at the office of the patent lawyer to pay him the fee for advice. The attorney had refused to accept it when Ned was poor. The latter related his strange story.

"And now, I suppose," smiled the lawyer, "you are going to expand your invention in a large way?" "Yes," replied Ned, "after I have married Nellie."

When fortune means to men most good, she looks upon them with a threatening eye.

A Plea to Men

Please keep your hair

By Edna Wallace Hopper

You men admire luxuriant hair, thick and lustrous, healthy, clean. And so do we, dear sirs. Then, why will you, through sheer neglect, let your hair disappear.

My hair is finer than 40 years ago. It grows thicker every year. I have never known falling hair or dandruff, and never a touch of gray. Just because I searched the world for the best hair helps men know. And I had them combined in a tonic and cleanser which I call Hair Youth. From time to time each better help discovered has been added to it.

I believe the experts I consult know all that is known about hair. I know they supply me their utmost. Certainly no factors ever discovered have brought finer hair than mine.

Now I offer you, as I offer women, this supreme help for the hair. It is concentrated. You apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp. There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which so stifle the hair roots. It tones and stimulates. Then hair thrives just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

I know that here I place at your command the greatest hair help in existence. Not some fallacious theory, not some ordinary tonic, but the best that science has discovered, so far as I can find.

All druggists and toilet counters supply my Hair Youth under guarantee. The first package brings you help you seek, or I will pay the cost. The cost is 50 cents and $1 with eyedropper. Let me urge you to try it. We women—all of us—love to see heavy, healthy hair. And I have found the way.

I will send you a bottle to try without cost if you mail this coupon to me.

INSURANCE

That Protects

Is said that the wise business man doesn't tempt fate. He can't afford to take a chance with circumstances over which he has no control.

Bear in mind this fact: disaster is threatening you at all times, whether it be in the form of accident, theft, fire, tornado, business losses, or health.

Insurance is the bulwark against disaster—and we as specialists in this business, will be pleased to confer with you in regard to any problem that may confront you.

Such a consultation is without charge and may result in great benefits to you at nominal cost.

U. S. WELCOMES "GUN PROTEST"

Washington, Aug. 1.—Disclosure in London Wednesday that the British Government has made formal representations to the United States and Japan, contending that in its opinion any increase in the elevation of the guns of existing battleships under the flag of any nation signatory to the Washington Naval Limitation Treaty would be a breach of that treaty, gave an entirely new aspect to the discussion of this subject, which has been in progress in this country for two years or more.

The announcement was met with complete silence on the part of the officials at the State Department, but at the Navy Department Secretary Wilbur, speaking on the basis of press reports and not upon any official representations he may have seen, declared that "it is a good idea to have the question raised in order to have it settled." The announcement in London, it is believed in this connection, has served to give the question a diplomatic status it has not before known.

MAY SAVE LIFE

(By Associated Press.)

Reading, Aug. 1.—After artificial respiration was applied for more than two hours, Anthony Gonsky, 14, rescued by companions from the Schuylkill river after he had gone down with cramps, was revived at a hospital here last night. The boy had been unconscious all night. His recovery was still in doubt today.

DOG LICENSES

(By Associated Press.)

Harrisburg, Aug. 1.—Licenses issued for Pennsylvania dogs in the first six months of this year totaled 422,940 compared with 405,804 for the entire year of 1923, officials in the department of agriculture announced today. Money received from the licenses is used to pay claims to persons whose animals have been killed as the result of the tuberculosis test.

SALOON RAIDED

(By Associated Press.)

Pittsburgh, Aug. 1.—Scores of saloons were raided by city police late last night and today. The owners and bartenders were arrested and held in $1,000 bail, for a hearing. The raids took place following samples of beer and whiskey taken recently from 300 saloons and hotels.

GIRL RISKS LIFE TO SAVE BROTHER

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—Ignoring the warnings of his three sisters, one of whom risked her life to try to save him, Joseph Miller, 10 years old, waded beyond his depth in the Delaware river at Red Bank, New Jersey, Wednesday afternoon and drowned before aid could reach him. The body has not been recovered.

The boy with his three older sisters were guests on an excursion to the Bank Sanitarium together with 1500 other children. A pool is maintained for the children to keep them away from the river.

At noon the boy took his lunch and went to the river's edge with his sisters. After he had eaten he waded into the water until it reached his neck. His oldest sister followed him, knowing that he could not swim, and begged him to return to the shore. He refused and as she attempted to force him to return to the bank he fought her off and waded out still farther.

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.)

New York, Aug. 1.—Prices continued to surge upward during the morning on the stock exchange despite a rather large volume of week-end profit taking. Steady accumulation of the railroad shares resulted in several additional new 1924 high records. Some of the strong spots were National Lead, DuPont, United Drug, Nash Motors, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Sugar. Call money opened at 2 per cent.

The greatest discovery in Poultry and Animal Feeding

since the development of the Balanced Ration

WHETHER you raise hogs, or poultry, or blooded cattle—whether you keep pigeons, or rabbits, or just a dog or two—you should know about Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast.

Used for 50 years in bread-making—eaten by thousands of men and women to re-invigorate their bodies and rebuild their health—Fleischmann's Yeast is now put up in a dry, highly concentrated form especially for animal use. And it is literally revolutionizing poultry and animal feeding methods.

When you add a small amount of Fleischmann's Pure

Dry Yeast to the regular ration, it helps to transform that ration quickly into solid flesh and energy. Every ounce of nourishment is extracted—and, in addition, Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast supplies the essential B-Vitamin (the vitamin of growth) in the most highly concentrated form available in all nature.

The results are amazing. Faster growth—increased health and vitality—glossier coats for fur-bearing animals—increased egg-production for poultry. Scientific feeders everywhere have proved the power of this remarkable food accessory.

Fleischmann's Pure Dry Yeast is on sale now right here in town. You owe it to your stock and your profits to try a can of it! Ask for free booklet on this modern method of animal feeding.

THIS PRESCRIPTION FOR KIDNEYS

No Drugs—Just Roots and Herbs
6 Ounce Bottle, 75c

Years ago Dr. Carey said, "When backache comes get after your kidneys—and don't waste any time."

"Right at this start, go to your druggist and ask for Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription No. 777; take it as directed until backache ceases and your eyes are clear and bright."

For more than 40 years Dr. Carey specialized in disease of the kidney and bladder, and when, in the height of his remarkably busy life, he decided to dispense his most effective kidney and bladder prescription through the better druggists, he helped thousands who could not afford to go to him for treatment.

Thousands of unobservant people have kidney ailments and never know it until too late. High colored urine, getting up in the night, and puffy eyes tell the story.

If you even suspect—start today with Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription No. 777. It will drive the poisons from your kidneys and your druggist knows all about it.

People's Drug Store dispenses lots of it. It comes both in liquid and tablet form. It will help you as it has a host of others. If it should not, if you aren't glad in one week's time that you bought it, money gladly returned—and only 75c.—adv.

A BANQUET THAT WAS ALMOST A TRAGEDY

"Three years ago at a banquet I was stricken with acute indigestion. Two doctors worked over me for an hour before I came to. I had had severe colic attacks before, but nothing like that. No doctors or medicine gave me permanent help until a friend, who was at the banquet, advised me to take a course of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I did with wonderful results." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at People's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere.—adv.
